Biographical SketchCOLONEL JUSTICE MARION CHAMBERS, USMCR
(Deceased)

Colonel Justice Marion "Jumping Joe" Chambers was born in Huntington, West Virginia, on 2 February 1908. He attended Marshall College, West Virginia, and George Washington University and received his Juris Doctor from National University.

Following the completion of a two-year enlistment in the Naval Reserve in 1930, he joined the Marine Corps Reserve as a private and in 1932 was commissioned a second lieutenant. He was assigned to the 5th Battalion in Washington, DC. He was a Major, attending annual summer camp in 1940, when his unit was called to active duty.

After rigorous training, he was among the first contingent of Marines to assault the island of Tulagi, Solomon Islands, on 7 August 1942. He was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received while commanding a company of the 1st Raider Battalion. He received the Silver Star Medal for evacuating the wounded and directing the night defense of a battalion aid station on Tulagi, where he was a seriously wounded patient. He commanded the 3d Battalion, 25th Marines, 4th Marine Division in the Roi-Namur Campaign. On Saipan he suffered a blast concussion, but returned to lead his command there and on Tinian. He was awarded the Legion of Merit with Combat "V" and a second Purple Heart following the Saipan-Tinian operations.

As a lieutenant colonel, he brought his battalion ashore at Iwo Jima on 19 February 1945. His sector was beneath high ground from which heavy enemy fire raked the whole landing beach. Capture of the high ground was essential to the success of the D-Day operation. Lieutenant Colonel Chambers lost more than half his officers and nearly half his enlisted strength on D-Day. By fearless disregard for his own life and leading a depleted battalion by example, he won the key heights that anchored the right flank of the Marines' position. On day four, directing the Marines' first rocket barrage and exposed to the enemy's main line of resistance, Lieutenant Colonel Chambers fell under enemy machine gun fire.

Lieutenant Colonel Chambers was assigned to Quantico following his discharge from Bethesda Naval Hospital. He entered the Senior Course at Quantico as a student and upon graduation was assigned as a member of the Marine Corps Reserve Policy Board. He was medically retired from the Marine Corps Reserve in 1946 and advanced to the grade of Colonel.

NOV 09 2009

From 1946 to 1964, as a resident of Rockville, Maryland, Colonel Chambers held various public service positions to include: Assistant Chairman of the Federal Personnel Council, Staff Adviser to the Senate Armed Services Committee, an employee of the Civil Defense Administration, and Deputy Director of the Office of Emergency Planning. He was later President of his own consulting firm until his retirement in 1973.

Colonel Chambers received the Nation's highest award, the Medal of Honor, on 1 November 1950. Presentation of the Medal of Honor was made at the White House by President Harry S. Truman for exceptional gallantry which helped assure the victory at Iwo Jima during World War II.

In addition to the Medal of Honor, Silver Star Medal, and Legion of Merit with Combat "V", Colonel Chambers' decorations and medals include the Purple Heart with two gold stars, Presidential Unit Citation with three bronze stars, Organized Marine Corps Reserve Medal with two stars, American Defense Medal with one silver star (denoting five campaigns), and the World War II Victory Medal.

Colonel Chambers died at Bethesda Naval Hospital on 29 July 1982. He was buried at Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors.
